(Rhodes VII.57 Mus. 1st apothek etc).

see letter 5.X.94 from B. Schmaltz)

A black and white photograph of a rectangular stone tablet. The tablet is heavily weathered and shows signs of age. In the center, there is an embossed inscription consisting of two vertical columns of characters. The characters appear to be in a cuneiform or similar ancient script. Below the main inscription, there is a horizontal line. A metal ruler is positioned at the bottom of the image, showing markings from 0 to 10 centimeters, which provides a sense of the tablet's size. The background is dark, making the lighter color of the stone stand out.
